The Olmos Greenway Basin Trail sits nestled in the woods of Olmos Basin Park, which in turns cuts a green swathe into San Antonio's North Side. The trail is just short of a mile, stretching from Jones Maltsberger Road down to Devine Road. Across Devine Road are the park's numerous sports facilities, including baseball diamonds and soccer fields. It's almost entirely shaded, a refreshing respite from the Texas sun. The trail offers glimpses of Olmos Creek each time it crosses above it. Residents can use the trail in a host of ways - walking, running, biking, walking dogs and pushing strollers.

The Olmos Greenway Basin is part of the Howard W. Peaks Greenway System, which is 69 miles and growing.
