This mix of paved and dirt trail runs roughly parallel to Gaylord Nelson Hwy (US Hwy 63) for nearly 7 miles from Spooner, Wisconsin to the city of Shell Lake.

Following an old rail corridor, the trail passes through primarily wooded areas and fields. At its north end, the trail begins by splitting off of the Wild Rivers Trail and it ends near the local airport after running along the southwest shore of Shell Lake.

When it's not running through forests, most of the trail is sheltered on both sides with a thick line of trees. There is the occasional residence or business near the trail and it crosses several roads, but the short section in the city of Shell Lake is the only residential and commercial area along the route. Going north-south, the paved section of the trail stretches from the intersection of US Hwy 63 & E
