Although short at less than 1 mile long, the Paradise Spring Riverwalk Trail is well worth a trip. Located in eastern Wabash, the scenic loop trail winds through Paradise Spring Historical Park and includes an overlook of the Wabash River. Along the way, you'll see many rustic buildings from the area's first settlers and can learn the significance of the site and the natural surroundings on the signs scattered throughout the park. An active railroad corridor cuts directly through the park.

The pathway connects with the Wabash Riverwalk at the southern end of the park and with the Wabash River Trail at the eastern side of park.
