A restored covered bridge that dates back to 1837 is the centerpiece of Noblesville's White River Greenway, which opened in 1999. The level to gently rolling asphalt trail, which hugs the banks of the White River, runs through woodland and prairie habitats and includes rest benches at scenic overlooks. The trail also passes through Forest Park, where trail users have the choice to continue south into the downtown area of Noblesville or to continue northwest on the trail along Lakeview Drive, Hague Road and E. 196th Street to access Morse Lake and the popular park located at its southern shore.
