Wright Park Trail forms a loop over nearly 4 miles (not all shown on the map) throughout the heavily wooded Wright Park. The White Circle Trail follows Otter Creek River, and along here you'll pass through a wetland and get scenic views of river cliffs. The White Triangle trail runs along the eastern boundary near railroad tracks, and the White Square Trail is part of the Trail Around Middlebury (TAM), which traverses the center of Wright Park.

The park is about 150 acres and features a suspension bridge and river falls, as well as a historical landmark homestead. You'll find more detailed maps of all the trails at the north and south entrances.
