The Cook Creek Trail is a short, paved trail located in the suburban community of Lone Tree. The trail originates in Cook Creek Park, home to a local pool, tennis courts, and a portion of the Willow Creek Greenbelt Trail, which users can take to head north into Arapahoe County. The trail heads southwest along the edge of a golf course before it turns to cut due south through a series of quiet residential neighborhoods.

The trail crosses the busy Lincoln Avenue, then continues west along the side of the road for a block, before heading south again through another group of neighborhoods. While certainly not a destination trail, the Cook Creek Trail is a nifty resource to help connect residents to their local park and the area's thriving trail system.
