The Turner Boulevard Trail offers a north-south route paralleling its namesake roadway through residential neighborhoods on Omaha's west side. Along its two miles, the paved pathway connects three parks: Leavenworth Park, Dewey Park and Turner Park and also meets the Field Club Trail.

On its northern end, you can access Midtown Crossing, a popular shopping and casual dining destination, and, at Cuming Street, there's a connection to the Burt Street Trail, which heads east to the Creighton University campus.

On its southern end, you can connect to the Field Club Trail by heading west down Pacific Street for six blocks.
