The Hellbranch Trail offers a paved route of just over 5 miles in the northwestern Columbus suburb of Hilliard. The pathway connects residential neighborhoods and schools with recreational parks, a dog park and other greenspace. On its north end, the trail also connects to the Heritage Rail-Trail, spanning 6.1 miles.

A good place to begin your journey is at the trail's southern end in Spindler Road Park, where you'll find athletic fields, a wildlife area, parking and restrooms. From there, you'll head north, popping in and out of open areas and stands of willows, maples and oaks. Along the way, travelers can enjoy access to the Clover Grove Natural Area, Franks Park Playground and the Roger A. Reynolds Municipal Park.
