The Bayway Trail is a 3.7-mile non-motorized trail between St. Petersburg and St. Pete Beach, Florida. The trail begins its westward journey near the St. Petersburg southwest wastewater treatment plant, an inauspicious beginning but don't let it put you off. The trail is smooth and well-maintained, lined with hefty palm trees. Plus the scenery continually improves as you head west. Paralleling Pinellas Bay (CR 682/ 679 / 54th Ave.), the trail passes multiple coral-colored residential developments and crosses the bay thrice. One crossing takes you to an islet that is mostly condominiums and single-family homes. The second crossing takes to Isla del Sol, which hosts a country club and marina. The third crossing takes you into St. Pete's and it is worth your while to stop here and take in the inviting azure of the Boca Ciega Bay.
