Berlin Road Sidepath

New Jersey

The Berlin Road Sidepath provides a pleasant, shaded paved trail for biking and walking in the community of Lindenwold. Stretching Lindenwold High School and connecting further down the road to the United States Avenue Trail, which leads into Gibbsboro in the north.

The Berlin Road Sidepath provides a pleasant, shaded paved trail for biking and walking in the community of Lindenwold. Stretching between Linden Avenue and Gibbsboro Road, the trail runs along the side of the road through a tree-lined corridor next to the NJ Transit line that services the area. The borough has invested in streetscape improvements to help improve off-road connectivity along this corridor, supplementing the sidepath trail with lampposts and other upgrades.

While not particularly long or scenic, the trail avoids road crossings and provides a little distance from the roadside, giving it a bit more of a natural feel than your typical sidepath. Bike lanes and sidewalk on Egg Harbor Road help provide continued access on the southern end of the trail, giving area students a convenient path to the
