The Black Arroyo Trail, completed in 2015, provides a lovely scenic pathway through the dry sage brush and open space that surrounds

the earthen arroyo, the trail comes to an end at 19th Street in a neighborhood that is just beginning to be developed as part of this rapidly-growing suburb.

The Black Arroyo Trail, completed in 2015, provides a lovely scenic pathway through the dry sage brush and open space that surrounds the channel formed by the arroyo. Offering about a mile-long trail for walking and cycling, the trail features several informational signs along the route to inform trail users about the natural environment - keep your eye out for burrowing owls and other desert wildlife along your journey - and features two bridges over the arroyo, including one that leads right to Maggie Cordova Elementary School, giving kids and parents a convenient means of walking or biking to school.

The trail begins in the north at Southern Boulevard, where a sidepath trail helps allow you to continue east or west. Heading through the natural space formed around
