North Truckee Drain Trail

Nevada

An unremarkable community recreation path that spans suburban neighborhoods in Sparks, Nevada, the North Truckee Drain Trail trails in the area, the North Truckee Drain Trail helps form a neat little network for non-motorized transportation and recreation.

An unremarkable community recreation path that spans suburban neighborhoods in Sparks, Nevada, the North Truckee Drain Trail follows the irrigation and flood control channel for a little over a mile, giving nearby residents a convenient path for strolls or dog-walking, as well as a way to access major shopping destinations without a vehicle.

The trail begins in the south outside a small subdivision in a charming neighborhood park. Heading north along the shrub-lined waterway, the trail leads past a local elementary school, paralleled on the other side of the drain by the Kiley Ranch South Trail. Crossing Los Altos Parkway, the trail continues on a corridor alongside Ion Drive, before coming to an end at Sparks Boulevard across from a golf course. With several other neighborhood
