When it comes to trails, Ridgeland is best known for being home to the Chisha Foka Multi-Use Trail, the scenic 10-mile greenway. But Ridgeland has shared use paths spread out across the city. The Pear Orchard Road Multi-Use Trail is 1.2 miles long, giving the residents of the neighborhoods it passes through a safe place to walk and bike. The trail sits on the east side of the road. In short sections, it is on-street, but still separated from vehicle traffic. It's also leads directly to the Chisha Foka Trail, so you can always expand your outing by exploiting that connection.
