A concrete, multi-use trail that forms a loop through the Lake Pahoja Recreation Area, the Lake Pahoja Trail offers a nice pathway in an off-the-beaten-path corner of northwest Iowa. The 72-acre lake encompassed by the trail is a popular fishing spot for bass and gill, and the lake is surrounded by lovely restored natural habitats, taking trail users through pristine examples of Iowa prairie land.

The Lake Pahoja Trail is an excellent amenity for those staying at the campgrounds around the lake, giving you a chance to stretch your legs and explore more of the scenic environment. Bring your bikes with you to enjoy a pleasant, low-stress ride, or simply head out on the trail for a leisurely stroll - providing over three miles of paved trail, the Lake Pahoja Trail is well-worth checking out if you find yourself in the area.
