The Thi Ho Memorial Trail is a mile-and-a-half of concrete trail in Pflugerville, a suburb of Austin. The trail begins at the Pflugerville High School, at the corner of the baseball diamond, and travels along Gilleland Creek, threading through Moose Park and Creekside Park before coming to its conclusion in Wuthrich Park. There are road crossings at 10th Street and Oxford Drive so proceed with caution. At the east end of the trail, it connects to Pfairways Trail, which heads north from there for another mile.

The trail is 1.5 of a total 40 miles of trail in Pflugerville. Previously known as Settlers Valley Trail, it was renamed in 2019 in honor of an elderly cyclist who loved the trail and was struck by a car at a road crossing.
