Jogging, rollerblading, walking dogs, pushing strollers and riding bikes are some of the ways that residents of Blaine take advantage

Jogging, rollerblading, walking dogs, pushing strollers and riding bikes are some of the ways that residents of Blaine take advantage of the Peace Portal Community Trail. At 10-feet wide, the trail comfortably accommodates multiple uses. The trail takes you past pastel-colored waterfront homes while providing views of Drayton Harbor, although vegetation and a railroad embankment end up obscuring the water for part of the way.

At present, the trail parallels Peace Portal Drive between between Cherry Street and Hughes Drive, but a third phase will see it continue south to Bell Road. The trail also serves as a taste of what's to come with the Coast Millenium Trail, a planned trail spanning the Whatcom County coastline.
