Blue River Trail (Shelbyville)

Indiana

Crossing from one end of Shelbyville to the other, the Blue River Trail provides a safe way for residents to walk or bike to a number

Fairgrounds which frequently has horses running during the day.

Crossing from one end of Shelbyville to the other, the Blue River Trail provides a safe way for residents to walk or bike to a number of parks whilst enjoying the proximity to the city's beloved rivers. The trail exists consists of both off- and on-street sections, including sidewalks.

The trail is divided into three contiguous segments or "reaches". The east reach sits in the riparian forest buffer of the Little Blue River, starting at the east corner of Blue River Memorial Park on Lee Boulevard. The blacktop trail heads west along the perimeter of that park as well as Kennedy Park on Alice Street. Highlights of the east reach include the Historic Shelby County Bridge 13, a steel truss bridge that was relocated to the Memorial Park and reassembled as part of the trail; a 300 ft Sycamore Tree Boardwalk/ Deck area; and the Shelby County
