The West Ellerbee Creek Trail winds along the stream of the same name and is part of Durham's North-South Greenway, a series of multiuse trails crossing the city of Durham.

Beginning by Indian Trail Park (2309 Indian Trail, Durham) in the Watts-Hillandale area of Durham, the paved trail travels through 17-acre Preserve, a protected area of restored riparian woodland. Skirting the north end of Westover Park, the trail crosses Guess Street and ducks under I-85. The I-85 underpass consists of a boardwalk over sensitive wetlands, but the trail transitions back to pavement as it winds northeast. The trail crosses North Pointe Road where residents can access big box retail and other stores. Proceeding to Broad Street, the trail connects to the Stadium Drive Trail, which provides a link
