The city of Arvada boasts over 150 miles of hike, bike and equestrian trails. The Denver suburb is home to the Moon Gulch Trail, a multipurpose trail traveling east-west and connecting the Indiana Equestrian Center to Spring Mesa Park. The trail is concrete with parallel unpaved sections more suitable for horses along some sections. The hard surface trail goes from Indiana Street, through Saddle Brook Park to W. 75th Place. It starts up again on Quaker Street and winds in the open space between houses up to Spring Mesa Park. Other spurs branch off at 77th Drive and connect south to Tucker Lake and southeast to Quaker Acres Park.
