The Bell Road Trail is a paved sidepath running the length of Bell Road beginning at the Rogers Bridge Trail intersection, north to McGinnis Ferry Bridge on the Fulton County line. The path is flat and easy accessible to the residents of the large single family homes and gated communities lining the east side of the road. It's asphalt surface makes it good for walking, biking and rolling. Note that there's not a lot of shade to be found on the path so wear sun protection before going out, if needed.

Rogers Bridge Multi-Use Trail continues from the south end of the Bell Road Path. It is a former roadway that leads up to a decommissioned bridge on the Chattahoochee River.
