The Randall Parkway Trail is a walking and biking path in Tuscaloosa, Alabama. The trail stretches from the entrance of the Ol' Colony Golf Complex on Old Colony Road to Northridge Road. A monument stands at the corner, declaring that North Ridge was christened Randall Parkway in memory of Pettus Randall, a prominent businessman and outdoor enthusiast. The paved path heads south along North Ridge Road, ending across the road from Northridge High School and marked by a plaque appreciating Randall's contributions.

The Randall Parkway Trail is a wide, paved, tree-lined path. Destinations along the trail include Northridge Park, with its large pavilion, as well as the school complex comprising Northridge Middle School, Northridge High and Verner Elementary.
