Rose M.Z. Gowen M.D. Trail

Texas

Running through the city of Brownsville, the Rose M.Z. Gowen M.D. Trail follows a former Union Pacific rail corridor and provides an Boulevard to the city's western neighborhoods and ends just north of 77 Flea Market—a shopping and dining plaza. The trail passes schools, local businesses, residences, city parks, lakes, and fields of mooing cows in the rural northern sections of the trail. Parrots and other subtropical birds can be heard along the trail.

There are crossing lights at the major roads, including at Ruben Torres Blvd and Alton Gloor Blvd. Take appropriate caution when crossing streets.

Running through the city of Brownsville, the Rose M.Z. Gowen M.D. Trail follows a former Union Pacific rail corridor and provides an essential link in the city's connected trail loop. It parallels another rail-trail—the Historic Battlefield Trail. Both trails are part of the 428-mile Caracara Trails network, a Rails-to-Trails Conservancy TrailNation project.

The trail was renamed in 2025 to honor Rose Gowen, a former RTC board member and leader in the expansion of the Brownsville Rail-Trail network. She was also a physician for over 20 years, and the trail name reflects both her service to Brownsville and her work as a medical professional.

The paved rail-trail spans 6.6 miles north from Palm
