The Cambridge Gateway Trail stretches east-west along West Cambridge Avenue up to Calhoun Road/ State Route 225. The eight-foot wide stone-dust trail is lined with mature trees providing shade and is a rails-to-trails conversion, one of several that the community of Greenwood boasts. At its east end, sidewalks connect users to West Cambridge Park on Charles Street, the site of a former railroad switching yard. From there users can connect to another rail-trail, 1.4-mile West Cambridge Trail.

The one-mile trail represents years of collective efforts to convert this old railroad into a biking and walking amenity. Signs placed at either end of the trail celebrate the varied groups worked to make this trail possible.
