rainy seasons.

The USC Upstate Passage is part of the Palmetto Trail, a statewide trail network. As its name suggests, the USC Upstate Passage begins on the campus of the University of South Carolina Upstate campus at the Rampey Center Trailhead.

The trail is open to hikers and mountain bikers. The woods and creek are full of wildlife and native South Carolina plants, including the federally endangered dwarf-flowered heartleaf (Hexastylis naniflora). When near the creek, keep an eye out for a variety of birds and other animals, including kingfishers, great blue herons, mallards, beavers, and muskrats.

For ease of use, the route is marked with yellow blazes. Parts of the trail are in a floodplain and may be wet during
