Auburn Trail (Brighton-Pittsford)

New York

The Auburn Trail is almost entirely sheltered on either side by trees as it meanders through residential and commercial areas. Running

Erie Canal.

Looking for a longer adventure? Try spending some time on the Erie Canalway Trail, a 290-mile long trail that follows the Erie Canal through upstate New York. It's possible to access it near the southern end of the Auburn Trail in Pittsford by taking the short connector trail known as the Frog Pond Trail, or by taking a short detour through the neighborhood.

The Auburn Trail is almost entirely sheltered on either side by trees as it meanders through residential and commercial areas. Running along the same former rail corridor as the Auburn Trail \(Pittsford-Farmington\), this stone dust trail provides connections between neighborhoods, schools, shops and community centers in Brighton and Pittsford. With both the Council Rock Primary School and The Harley School on the trail's route, walking or biking to school is an appealing option for local residents.

The trail is 10-foot-wide with a smooth flat surface and ADA-accessible. In Brighton, the trail begins by a small community garden called Helmut's Garden (1 Village Ln) and then winds its way south through a mix of residential and commercial areas to Pittsford, where it ends near the
