This New London-Greenwich Rail Trail runs for 7.3 miles between the namesake cities of New London and Greenwich, Ohio. It is a rail-with-trail and follows alongside an active rail line.

About the Route

The trail heads northeast from Greenwich, where the trail's southern endpoint is marked with signage and a gravel parking lot. The trail entirely follows the active rail line except for a short section of the trail that uses Townline Road 187 to connect the trail as it crosses State Route 250.
