Easton Rail-Trail

Maryland

Overview The Easton Rail-Trail runs between Dutchmans Lane in southern Easton, Maryland, and North Easton Park—a large sports

The ideal place to start along the trail is at the North Easton Park and A. James Park Sports Complex, where parking is available. From here, the trail heads south into down Easton, which connects trail users into many attractions.

Overview

The Easton Rail-Trail runs between Dutchmans Lane in southern Easton, Maryland, and North Easton Park—a large sports complex for 2.5 miles. The trail opened in 1998 and has been a popular local amenity since that time.

About the Route

Because it runs directly through Easton's historic downtown, the trail provides great access for many of the town's residents to local stores and schools. An original railroad station also sits along the trail near its midpoint south of Goldsborough Street. The depot has been converted into a museum and visitors center.
