Annapolis' Poplar Trail runs for nearly 1 mile on a section of the old Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis right-of-way in the heart of Maryland's capital city. Although short, the trail is a vital part of Annapolis' trail system, as it links residential neighborhoods with two elementary schools, athletic fields and a public library. Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium is also within sight of the trail.

Future plans call for the extension of the trail west of Admiral Road to link directly with the proposed South Shore Trail, which will eventually take trail users an additional 10 miles to the city of Odenton on the same abandoned WB&A corridor.
