The State Route 20 Arboreta Trail—also known as the Highway 20 Trail—was developed in the 1970s after a donation of the right-of-way to the City of Burlington by a private citizen. The trail, which is wedged between SR 20/ Cascade Highway and active BNSF Railway tracks, runs for nearly a mile east from downtown Burlington to District Line Road. Within Burlington city limits, the trail is paved; the remainder is crushed stone.

The tree-lined trail occupies the same former rail corridor as the much longer Cascade Trail stretching from Sedro-Woolley (just a few miles east of Burlington) to the small town of Concrete.
