The Pigeon Creek Greenway Passage is a multi-use trail in Evansville, part of which follows along the Ohio River and, of course, Pigeon Creek. The popular trail features scenic resting areas and interesting sculptures, with access to parks, neighborhoods and city attractions, such as the Museum of Arts.

There are plans to extend the trail to circumnavigate the city. The trail currently runs in a continuous course between Heidelberg Avenue, north of the city, and Sunset Park, along the river downtown. In 2018, the Hi-Rail Greenway, a north-south section of the trail system, opened and offers 2.5 miles of paved pathway.
