

2025

TrailLink Unlimited

Guides

Lewis S. Eaton Trail
California

Lewis S. Eaton Trail

California

The Lewis S. Eaton Trail is the backbone of the growing trail network central to the planned 22-mile San Joaquin River

The Lewis S. Eaton Trail is the backbone of the growing trail network central to the planned 22-mile San Joaquin River Parkway. The main trail currently offers more than 5 paved miles through Woodward Park and beyond, with wide dirt shoulders for those who prefer running off road. The trail presents views of the San Joaquin River bottom and distant Sierra Nevada mountains as the route heads north along the river bluffs.

Spur trails in Woodward Park offer a natural surface alternative for equestrian users. In the north, the trail ends at the Coke Hallowell Center for River Studies, where you can learn about the cultural and natural history of the river and its adjacent lands.

TrailLink
by Rails-to-Trails Conservancy

TrailLink.com

Lewis S. Eaton Trail

California

States: California

Counties: Fresno

Length: 5.9miles

Trail end points: Woodward Park to Coke
Hallowell Center for River Studies on Old Friant
Rd.

Trail surfaces: Asphalt

Trail category: Greenway/Non-RT

Trail activities: Bike,Inline

Skating,Wheelchair Accessible,Horseback
Riding,Walking

Parking & Trail Access

Parking for the Lewis S. Eaton Trail is available at Fresno's Woodward Park (7775 Friant Road). Note that the park charges a $5 vehicular entrance fee.

TrailLink
by Rails-to-Trails Conservancy

TrailLink.com

TrailLink.com