Shelby Farms Greenline

Tennessee

The Shelby Farms Greenline, constructed along the former Nashville, Chattanooga, and St. Louis Railway lines (and later CSX

Other parts of the route open up to residential neighborhoods, and the trail provides a vital transportation and social linkage through these communities, connecting them to each other and to parks and recreational amenities within the city.

A highlight of the route is Shelby Farms Park, one of America's largest urban parks. At 4,500 acres, it offers just about every type of outdoor activity imaginable: horseback riding, ziplining, disc golf, fishing, canoeing and kayaking, nature trails, the fantastical Woodland Discovery Playground—even a herd of buffalo!

Connections

At Shelby Farms Park, the Greenline connects to the Wolf River Greenway.

The Shelby Farms Greenline, constructed along the former Nashville, Chattanooga, and St. Louis Railway lines (and later CSX lines) is used by over 200,000 people each year. The trail runs 10.6 miles between Flicker Street in Binghampton (east of Midtown Memphis) and the Old Cordova Railroad Station.

About the Route

The rail trail unfurls largely under a canopy of large oaks and other shade trees, making it pleasantly cool and green in summer. Dotted with wooden trestles over scenic wetland and riparian areas, and with few street crossings, deer, wild turkeys, armadillos, and other wildlife occasionally wander through the hushed corridor.
