existing Western Reserve Greenway at Champion Avenue, allowing for a much longer trek from Warren to Ashtabula on Lake Erie. The rail-trail segment of the Garrett Wonders Bike Trail begins at Elm Rd NE, just a couple blocks southwest of Warren G. Harding High School. From the northern portion of the trail, take Paige Avenue south to pick up the southern segment. The trail runs southeast through residential neighborhoods and features a dedicated bike/ped bridge to cross busy US 422.

As the trail leaves downtown Warren, it enters a more industrial landscape, before rejoining neighborhood streets at its southern endpoint at Burton Street. Long-term plans call for linking the trail with the Niles Greenway, located just a few miles south of Warren.

The Garrett Wonders Bike Trail is an integral component of the Great Ohio Lake-to-River Greenway, which will eventually link Lake Erie and the Ohio River via a multiuse, off-road trail. Renamed in memory of an elite local cyclist in 2015, and formerly known as the Warren Bikeway, this trail is mapped as the southernmost section of the Western Reserve Greenway.

Warren's portion consists of two unique parts: a greenway coursing through a utility corridor, North End Park (trailhead parking), and industrial properties in the northern part of the city, and a rail-trail running southeast from the heart of Warren to its southern border. The short northern section includes an on-road route for three blocks using lightly-traveled Fremont Avenue. The trail extends north from N. River Road NW to meet the
