Although currently only 2.5 miles long, the trail will one day expand to offer a connection to Washington County's St. Croix Valley Trail in Minnesota, as well as trails in Dakota County.

Opened in the summer of 2017, the Point Douglas Regional Trail offers a picturesque link along the Mississippi River between Prescott, WI, and Hastings, MN, on a former railroad called the Peanut Line.

At either end of the pathway is a bridge crossing. At its western end, the trail heads over the Mississippi via a protected pedestrian walkway/bicyclist lane, providing safe passage across Highway 61. On the other side of the bridge, the trail connects to the Mississippi River Regional Trail, which also connects to the Vermillion River Regional Greenway.

On the Point Douglas Regional Trail's east end, it crosses the St. Croix River and heads into downtown Prescott.
