The B-Line Trail in Bloomington runs for 3 miles between Adams Street (near the railroad tracks) and West Country Club Drive. The trail passes through downtown Bloomington and by a railroad switchyard. The trail features benches, drinking fountains (for both people and pets) and nice landscaping, including energy-efficient LED lights. Two fitness stations, provided with support from IU Health Bloomington, allow you to step up your trail experience.

At the southern end (West Country Club Drive), the B-Line Trail connects to the Bloomington Rail Trail (2 miles of crushed gravel), which then connects with the Clear Creek Trail (2.4 miles of asphalt), for a continuous 7.4 mile trail. In 2-19, the Limestone Greenway, a 1.8-mile paved rail-trail, added to this growing trail system.
