

2025

TrailLink Unlimited

Guides

Decatur Trail
Alabama

Decatur Trail

Alabama

Much of the Decatur Biking and Running/Walking Trail is asphalt, and some is on-street, but at Point Mallard Park it turns into a main access points with parking. Across the Tennessee River from the trail, you will find the Wheeler National Wildlife Refuge, 35,000 acres that supports thousands of wintering waterfowl as well as a year-round population of many bird, mammal, fish, amphibian and reptile species.

Much of the Decatur Biking and Running/Walking Trail is asphalt, and some is on-street, but at Point Mallard Park it turns into a shady, well-maintained gravel trail over smooth terrain.

The pathway connects to Wilson-Morgan Park, passes through Point Mallard Park, and extends down to Rhodes Ferry Park, winding down a seven-mile stretch by the picturesque Tennessee River. Many areas cross the same territory as the sanctioned Cherokee Trail of Tears, as you make your way past the railroad tracks.

Mallard Point has a water park, golf course, batting cages, camping, a year-round ice rink and much more.

The trail is open at all times and there are at least three

TrailLink
by Rails-to-Trails Conservancy

TrailLink.com

Decatur Trail

Alabama

States: Alabama

Counties: Morgan

Length: 14 miles

Trail end points: Wilson-Morgan Park to Point Mallard Park

Trail surfaces: Asphalt, Crushed Stone, Gravel

Trail category: Greenway/Non-RT

Trail activities: Bike, Walking

Parking & Trail Access

In Decatur, along the Tennessee River, you will find three parking areas: the end point at Mallard Point Park, near the ice complex (8th Street); the other end point at Rhodes Ferry Park (Line St. NE & Oak St. NE); and at the intersection of 8th St. SE and Point Mallard Rd. SE.

Decatur Trail

Alabama

Trailhead

Restroom

Parking

Water Fountain

Tunnel

TrailLink
by Rails-to-Trails Conservancy

TrailLink.com