Huntington Beach Bicycle Trail (Coastal Trail)

California

The scenic Huntington Beach Bicycle Trail runs 8.4 miles along the Pacific Ocean waterfront of the most populous beach city in Orange

Connections

At the trail's southern terminus, turn north on the Santa Ana River Trail to travel uninterrupted for dozens of miles into inland Orange County and beyond.

The scenic Huntington Beach Bicycle Trail runs 8.4 miles along the Pacific Ocean waterfront of the most populous beach city in Orange County. Paved over its entire length and remarkably wide at some points, the trail is popular with a diverse range of trail users, including families with small children, inline skaters, joggers and those simply using the path to access the city's pristine beaches.

About the Route

The path's northern end courses through Bolsa Chica State Beach, a popular spot for surfing, sunbathing and RV camping, while the southern end passes through Huntington State Beach, arguably the best place to surf in California. Between the two, Huntington Beach City Beach features a municipal pier with direct access from the trail.
