The Reno Rail Trail is a part of a network that will one day be the longest trail in the state: the Northeast Texas Trail, which will span 132 miles across seven counties. Reno Rail Trail offers a paved route through the city of Reno. On its western end, it connects to the Trail de Paris. On its east end, it continues as the Prairiland Trail to Blossom. Amenities include colorful benches where users can sit to rest or read books borrowed from the free library along the trail. Dogs are welcome on the trail and there are pet waste stations provided. On the west end there is a covered picnic area and while the east trailhead on Airport Road is close to local eateries for a post-trail snack.
