Leon Creek Greenway

Texas

The Leon Creek Greenway is a tranquil 25.6-mile oasis through western San Antonio. About the Route The Leon Creek Greenway

Farther south, a disconnected 2.6-mile section of the trail runs through Rodriguez County Park and Levi Strauss Park, while another separate section in Pearsall Park is 1.5 miles.

Connections

Part of the city's Howard W. Peak Greenway Trails system, the main pathway begins in Eisenhower Park, it connects with the Salado Creek Greenway on the city's north side. Together the two trails form a route of more than 50+ miles.

The Leon Creek Greenway is a tranquil 25.6-mile oasis through western San Antonio.

About the Route

The Leon Creek Greenway winds its way south for 20+ miles along its namesake creek. The path is fairly flat with some gentle slopes and is dotted with small ponds, including Earl Scott Pond near its northern end, which is home to a variety of birds and wildlife.

The trail runs adjacent to many parks, including O.P. Schnabel Park, known for its natural beauty, steep cliffs, and many amenities, including athletic fields, picnic tables, nature trails, and a YMCA facility.
