The Crow Creek Greenway takes travelers along a tree-lined creek through busy urban areas of Wyoming's capital. The trail begins in Martin Luther King Jr. Park, which offers athletic facilities, a playground and restrooms. Nearby is the Francis E. Warren Air Force Base, one of only three strategic missile bases in the U.S.

A citizens group called the Crow Creek Greenway Committee was a major initiator of this trail more than 20 years ago. Today, Cheyenne boasts more than 28 miles of trails.
