The East Cheyenne Greenway provides a pleasant route through residential areas of eastern Cheyenne. The eastern half follows N. College Drive for much of its length and ends with an expansive view of the Sun Valley Open Space. The second half extends the trail west from N. College Drive to Holliday Park. This part of the trail travels mostly through industrial Cheyenne, and also provides access to the athletic fields of VFW Pride Park.

At Holliday Park, one of 25 behemoth steam engines is displayed and preserved. 'Big Boy' steam engines were the biggest in the world when they were built for Union Pacific in the 40's. Cheyenne's own Big Boy was retired in 1958 and relocated to the park in 1963.
