Cypress Creek Greenway Florida

Cypress Creek Trail is a shared use path that runs from the Everglades towards the sea in the southeastern Florida city of Tephford Park Playground (10301-10573 Southgate Blvd) is located at the trail's western end. Tamarac Veterans' Park (7825 Southgate Blvd) is midway along the route and Fern Forest Nature Center (201 S Lyons Rd, Coconut Creek) is at the eastern endpoint of the trail.

The trail has good signage throughout. Note that the trail offers little shade, so you'll want to wear a hat, shades, and sunscreen. Restrooms and drinking water are located along the route and are marked on the TrailLink map.

Cypress Creek Trail is a shared use path that runs from the Everglades towards the sea in the southeastern Florida city of Tamarac. The trail lies just outside the Everglades' eastern border. For nearly 3 miles, the paved greenway parallels Southgate Boulevard on one side and C-14 Canal on the other. It initially ended near the Fern Forest Nature Center. However, there is a more recent eastern segment that continues the journey towards the sea and extends the trail to Lyons Road for a total of 7 miles.

Running along the river, the trail is mostly smooth, wide, and flat. The Cypress Creek Trail brings locals and residents closer to the river and to the flora and fauna that surround it. Offering plenty of opportunities for recreation, it is also a connector to various destinations ranging from schools and shopping to parks.
