Cypress Creek Greenway

Florida

Cypress Creek Trail is a shared use path that runs from the Everglades towards the sea in the southeastern Florida city of Tephford Park Playground is located at the trail's western end. Tamarac Veterans' Park is midway along the route and Fern Forest Nature Center is at the eastern endpoint of the trail.

The trail has good signage throughout. Note that the trail offers little shade, so you'll want to wear a hat, shades, and sunscreen.

Cypress Creek Trail is a shared use path that runs from the Everglades towards the sea in the southeastern Florida city of Tamarac. The trail lies just outside the Everglades' eastern border. For nearly 3 miles, the paved greenway parallels Southgate Boulevard on one side and C-14 Canal on the other.

About the Route

Running along the river, the trail is mostly smooth, wide, and flat. The Cypress Creek Trail brings locals and residents closer to the river and to the flora and fauna that surround it. Offering plenty of opportunities for recreation, it is also a connector to various destinations ranging from schools and shopping to parks.
