B&O Trail

Indiana

The B&O Trail follows a former Baltimore and Ohio Railroad corridor for 14.8 miles in Indiana. About the Route On the western

Street in the city of Indianapolis.

Connections

The northern section of the trail intersects both the Ronald Reagan Parkway Trail and the Bicentennial Trail.

At the easternmost endpoint of the trail there are several bike lanes in construction, that while not part of the official trail, will connect the B&O Trail to the White River Wapahani Trail.

The B&O Trail follows a former Baltimore and Ohio Railroad corridor for 14.8 miles in Indiana.

About the Route

On the western outskirts of the capital, the paved pathway stretches 8.3 miles through Brownsburg, offering tree-lined routes through residential communities and rural countryside. The trail's northern endpoint is located at N County Rd. 250 E and runs southeast from here until terminating at N Raceway Rd. This section of the trail includes a short tunnel under Ronald Reagan Parkway decorated with beautiful painted murals. Restrooms are available at Cardinal Bark Park (3432 Hornaday Rd), slightly north of the trail. The trail continues along the disused railroad corridor until reaching Michigan
