Outside of the park, trail users should be very cautious at some of the road intersections, as many of them do not have designated crosswalks.

A collection of neighborhood trails in Sacramento's North Natomas community offers convenient access to parks, schools and shopping centers for local residents and visitors. Most are well connected, and many travel through greenways and along flood channels and basins for the most natural experience possible. The network also conveniently serves Sleep Train Arena, home of the NBA's Sacramento Kings.

North Natomas Regional Park—the network's centerpiece—features a pond, ballfields and open space. The pedestrian and bicycling loop runs along the park's edge, providing an optimal opportunity to view the Swainson's hawks and western meadowlarks that often soar above the natural landscape.
