The Londonderry Rail Trail runs for 4.6 miles between Harvey and Rockingham Road. The smooth paved trail offers a pleasant and tranquil adventure for trail users along an old Manchester and Lawrence Railroad corridor.

About the Route

The western endpoint of the Londonderry Rail Trail sits on Harvey Road between Planeview Dr and Wester Rd. The trail travels through heavy trees and some marshy land, making for a scenic trip. At Sanborn Road, the trail arrives at a parking lot and trailhead for the Londonderry Rail Trail.

From here, the route heads east through quiet, wooded neighborhoods. The first mile from the trailhead forms a straight shot on an elevated embankment—a remnant of the original railroad corridor infrastructure—but with a few dips down across neighborhood streets. The trail's surface is well-maintained, and signage is good for the entire trail length.

The rail trail opens up as it passes the North Londonderry Park & Ride, which is the second key parking area for the route. Passing under I-93, the route veers south toward the center of town. Immediately after the underpass, the route passes some tranquil ponds and wetlands on the trail's east side.

After a few street crossings, the route follows Independence Drive a short distance before entering another beautiful, wooded section. The remaining miles take you through some tranquil wetland areas—trail users might forget your proximity to I-93 and the town in this pristine natural sanctuary. The trail's eastern endpoint is on NH 28/ Rockingham Rd by the intersection with Seasons Lane. Watch for turtles and other wildlife as the trail crosses through a peat bog.
