The Beerline Trail, named after the corridor that was once used by freight trains transporting the ingredients for beer to some of Milwaukee's famous breweries, runs for 3.7 miles through central Milwaukee and has contributed to the revitalization of neighborhoods adjacent to the Milwaukee River. Two disconnected segments of the trail are currently open. The Beerline Trail is part of the Route of the Badger, a Milwaukee-area trail network.

About the Route

The northern section of the trail leaves off from W. Capitol Drive (State Highway 190) and cuts southwest along the former railroad corridor. Periodically along this section, there are frequent and brief on-road sections that help trail users navigate between the intersections that interrupt the paved trail route. This section of the trail is largely surrounded by the houses of the nearby neighborhoods of Riverwest and Williamsburg Heights.

The longer, southern section runs through the Riverwest, Harambee, and—appropriately—Brewer's Hill neighborhoods. This section's northern endpoint is located in Gordon Park and the route heads south from here alongside the Milwaukee River. The route here runs along a tree-covered greenway, a contrast to the northern section of the trail.

Near the southern end of the trail, where it connects with the Oak Leaf Trail and parts of the Milwaukee Riverwalk, another spur leads north and loops around the Kilbourn Reservoir Park.
