South Peachtree Creek Trail

Georgia

The South Peachtree Creek Trail is a short greenway linking four recreational amenities in DeKalb County. On the east end, Medlock

Today, the South Peachtree Creek offers a trail network spanning just over 3 miles that is perfect for commuters and connects to the trails at Lullwater Park on the Emory University campus.

The South Peachtree Creek Trail is a short greenway linking four recreational amenities in DeKalb County. On the east end, Medlock Park features baseball and softball diamonds, tennis courts, a playground, pool and open space. In the west, Mason Mill Park offers a tennis center, recreation center and picnic area on the site of the former Decatur Waterworks. The boardwalk trail between the parks winds through woodlands behind suburban homes.

A new 1.2-mile spur now leads from Mason Mill north to Spring Valley, the back entrance to Oak Grove neighborhood and winds along Burnt Fork Creek on elevated boardwalks. Another mile-long new spur peels off just after the train trestle and winds out past senior towers to Emory University crossing under Clairmont Road.
