Overview

The Salem Bike-Ped Corridor is a 4.95-mile trail in Salem. The trail is paved between its northern end at intersection of Broadway & Range Street and Main Street. South of Main Street, the trail is currently unpaved and better suited for walking and mountain biking.

About the Route

From its northern end at intersection of Broadway & Range Street, the tree-covered trail heads south to Main Street. The trail runs behind the popular Tuscan Kitchen restaurant on Main Street in Salem. In fact, the restaurant's owner generously paid for construction of this segment, and has made the eatery's outdoor patio available for trail users—be sure to stop in for a bite to eat to show your appreciation!

On Main Street, visit the Salem Depot Transportation Museum, housed in a restored Boston and Maine Railroad station. The museum happily offers restrooms and water to trail users.

Continuing south as an unpaved path, the trail parallels S Broadway Street to Hampshire Road, where it connects to the Methuen Rail Trail.

Connections

At its northern end, the Salem Bike-Ped Corridor connects to the Windham Rail Trail.

When complete, the Salem Bike-Ped Corridor will run for more than 5 paved miles on a former Boston and Maine Railroad corridor from connections with the Windham Rail Trail (north) and Methuen Rail Trail (south) in their respective towns. The completion of this crucial stretch of trail will allow for an uninterrupted trek from the northern edge of Lawrence, Massachusetts, to downtown Derry, New Hampshire.

These three trails, as well as several others farther north, are also components of the in-progress Granite State Rail Trail, which will eventually span the length of New Hampshire.
