Rogers' new Pleasant Grove Trail runs through the southwestern corner of the city, a largely rural area now dotted with new residential subdivisions. In fact, the only non-residential or farm property along the trail's route is the massive First Baptist Church campus, which the trail bisects.

In the north, the trail connects to two local trails. Hop on the Mountie Trail to head northeast to Rogers High School, or take the Mercy Trail to continue northwest to Mercy Hospital Northwest Arkansas and other destinations throughout Rogers. At the trail's southern end, the Goad Springs Trail extends through Lowell to Springdale, where even more trail connections are available.

Many of these trails, including the Pleasant Grove Trail, are components of Northwest Arkansas' Razorback Regional Greenway, a 46-mile, primarily off-road, shared-use trail that extends from southeast Bella Vista to the southern edge of Fayetteville.
